

Subscribing to New Content

All registered users of Modeling Guru can easily keep tabs on all newly posted content in their favorite communities by "subscribing" to its content. While you're logged in, simply go to the community of interest and click the link: "Receive email notifications" inside the Actions menu, shown at right. The link will be toggled to read "Stop email notifications."

From that point on, every time a new message or document is posted in the community, you will be notified by email. If you ever decide to end your subscription, simply click the "Stop email notifications" link while in the same community.

This same procedure applies to individual message threads, so you can choose to subscribe to a specific discussion without getting email for all the messages in that community.